WRITING

Keep the direction

It was stormy and raining day. Pacific Ocean's waves were so huge, that our ship couldn't keep horizontal direction. I went to our captain's room to ask, what we should do. We all respected our captain. (It) was old, retired and bored man. He had been serving on ship for 10 years. Great sailman! Peng, he was.

60 years old, he was very healthy and active.

But I should notice, that day he was looking very ill. It seemed the weather broke him down. But in his eyes I still had been seeing the power. He said, that we had to keep the direction, to follow the way. And we did. His speech encouraged us.

The storm was over. We arrived to our place of destination. Our captain was feeling much better. I surprised, how he could keep himself calm in that hard time, how he could manage with the weather and with himself. What a great sailman! 1954
